A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRINCIPAL

To the Members of the Senior Class:

Authorities keep reminding us that the war can be won through the saving of rubber and gasoline. Again we are told that it is food that will decide the issue.

But the real hope of this country lies in something greater than rolling stock and pantry stores, however desperately these things are needed; the hope of this country rests with its young people—the boys and girls who are attending our schools and are receiving diplomas of graduation—a tribute of the community to their proficiency and citizenship.

These young people have the spirit and the training to meet the shock of war courageously; they have the sanity and common sense to face the problems of the peace serenely and build for themselves and us the future of mankind's dreams.

E. J. CUMMINGS, Principal.

FALL · 1942

Hi-lighted by such events as the Scrap Dance, student emigration to the harvest fields, the introduction of the Victory Corps project, and the Eagles-G.S.S. Jinx, the Fall term '42 swung merrily along with Nat Garibaldi holding the student body president's gavel, assisted by Marilyn Brunton, vice president; Coriene Pfaeffle, secretary; Howard Johnson, treasurer; Bill Rose, athletic manager; Bob Smith, custodian, and Allan Butler, yell leader.

A tin can dance, held just before Thanksgiving vacation, was one of the many social events of the term. Admission was a tin can, which was later used to make a happier holiday for many needy families.

November is also the month which students will cherish in their memories for the system of "staggered hours" that was put into effect, probably the first time in history, and all cheered the city ruling of a school day from 9:00 to 2:30.

Low senior Joanne Mitchell introduced an idea to the student council which resulted in a happier Christmas for many former Washington graduates now in the service. With the help of Mr. Willard Gates, who compiled a list of the boys and their stations, Christmas packages were sent to these boys.

The junior class, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Birdeen Gowan, contributed money for the baking of fifty pounds of fruit cakes to go to many unknown servicemen stationed in Alaska. Also for the benefit of servicemen, the Eagles and G.S.S. joined forces to present a jinx on January 19. Featured on the program were Criss Tull and Tommy Smith and "The Shooting of Dan McGrew."

The senior play, "The Late Christopher Beane," by Sidney Howard, was presented January 14, and at the closing, Miss Helen Archer, director, announced her departure to government work in Alaska.

The Fall term '42 will be long remembered by all Washingtonians.

SPRING · 1943

Armed with materials with which to face the new term, Washington "early-birds" flew through the halls to beat the 8:30 bell to class, as the "staggered hour" program faded into the past. Even at that early hour, they found student body officers Bob Smith, president; Pat Bradley, vice president; Janice Hindley, secretary; Bill Van Steenburgh, treasurer; Gerard Rhine, yell leader; Dick Foster, athletic manager; and Stan Perkins, custodian, on hand with business-like expressions and a program full of many promising events.

One of Washington's first victories of the term was won by the Rifle Team, which was given top honors in the Ninth Service Command Inter-Collegiate Gallery Rifle Matches, held in the Washington armory.

A service flag, representing all the former Washingtonians now in the armed forces, was presented to the school by Leon French, president of the class of '45. The total number of boys in the service was shown in a large blue star, while those boys who have given their lives for their country were commemorated by gold stars.

Victory Corps activities got into full swing with hundreds of Washingtonians enrolling in one of the many divisions. A Victory Corps newscast was broadcast once a week with Don Siegel as announcer.

Junior Day, with Eddie Hancock in the spotlight as H11 president, was acclaimed a great success. Featured on the program was the fifty-eight piece army band of the Ninth Service Command.

The Senior Day dance was held May 14, followed a week later by the Scholarship Society dance.

The senior rally, planned mainly by President Frank Brann and Phil Burton of the two senior classes, was high-lighted by the appearance of the Coast Guard band, whose military airs added to the lively spirit.

The final dance of the term was the G.S.S.-Eagle dance on June 4.

And so another term fades into the past and soon becomes just another pleasant memory.

SENIORS

THE CLASS OF '42 IN REVIEW

The members of the Fall class of 1942 have left Washington, but they still retain memories of the happy time they spent within these walls. The three years that passed before senior prom night are filled with memories that Washingtonians will never forget.

In the spring of 1940, this class first entered Washington's halls and began to ascend the primary step of the high school ladder.

At their first class meeting they elected Bob England as their president; Ruth Fisher and Rosalie Dygert completed the trio of officers. They struggled under the weight of their class project, Clean-up, but they worked hard and soon the school showed signs of neatness.

That term ended and the next began, with Bill Rose becoming the chief executive, and again Ruth Fisher was vice president, with Florence Lindsey as secretary. This term they vowed to stop traffic accidents within the school, and posted signs and traffic directors in the halls and stairways to assure the success of their "Safety Campaign."

This small but spirited class elected Nat Garibaldi as president; Bill Rose as vice president and Marilyn Adams as secretary, in their low junior term, and then they hurried on up the ladder until in the fall of 1941 they became high juniors. This term they sponsored a junior day rally with a "Gay Nineties" theme.

The next term Mike Khenchilian was at the helm, and Marilyn Adams was vice president, with Gloria Franklin as secretary.

The term passed fast and soon the class became "high and mighty seniors." They elected Harold Winans, president; Marilyn Adams, vice president, and Rosilie Dygert, secretary.

After a never to be forgotten term, with a wonderful prom to climax it, the class of Fall '42 marched up the aisles to receive their diplomas and bid farewell to Washington.

FALL GRADUATES

Popular leaders of the low senior class this last term have been its well liked officers who are largely responsible for the success of their class. The president is Phil Burton, vice president is Christine La Mont, and the secretary is Constance Trigonis. These students have led their class in all their activities and helped build the spirit of their enthusiastic classmates. Phil helped his class select their senior sweaters and make important decisions for their last term at George Washington. The low senior officers were active in the Executive Council, and Phil was well known for his powers of persuasion of its illustrious members. Christine and Connie are both active members of the Girls Service Society, as are low seniors Phyllis Frates and Faye Pasch. The G.A.A. has also had Phyllis as a hard-working member. With such splendid officers as Phil, Christine and Connie, it is no wonder that the low senior class has contributed to the spirit and growth of George Washington.

LOW SENIORS

Talented Blossom Bien stands for a moment in the light of her recent victory in a Shakespearean contest as we admire the attractive cup which Blossom won by the beauty and power of her voice. Blossom is well known at George Washington, as she flowered early in her career, having had very successful experience in school plays and oratorical contests since she first knocked on the stage door. Blossom modestly reminds us of our other famous speaker, Alec Ross, who has won glory for George Washington High School with the resonance of his oratory. Alec rode on the strength of his voice to New York where he achieved distinction delivering his speech on Thomas Jefferson, which he wrote on the occasion of the celebration of Jefferson's birth. It seems that there are no fields too great for Washington low seniors to invade and conquer.

FUTURE CITIZENS

Blissfully unaware of his audience, "Eddie Eagle" dances on to the enchanting strains of the George Washington Dance Band. Somewhere in the distance low seniors Sally Coppinger and Felix Ordoquihandy are singing in the choir, but Eddie does not hear them, nor does he hear Gloria Antenucci playing the piano. Popular low seniors Maureen McClelland and Art Johnson dance by but Eddie's eyes are closed. He is too preoccupied to think of the low seniors on the dance committee who are responsible for his bliss. Later he will realize how prominent the low seniors have been in all social events. They have entertained at rallies and dances and have cheered at games and competition. Although one of the smallest classes in the school, the low seniors have been instrumental in promoting new ideas and in helping to work them into practical application to Washington life. We won't disturb Eddie with any more details because they can all be summed up into two words—school spirit. And the class of Fall '43 has it!

DECEMBER CLASS

"Where were you on the night of May 27?" demands Arnold Kohn of Florence Ulfelder, advertising manager of the Surveyor. She quickly replies like a good Washingtonian that she was watching Arnold do a fine job in the main part of the production, "Ever Since Eve." Being loyal to his classmates, Arnold readily admits that much of the amazing success of the term play was due to such vivacious low seniors as Nancy Payne, Norma Toff, Geraldine Small, and Alec Ross. Florence reminds Arnold that low seniors Faye Pasch and Borden Rosenbaum did a fine job on the Surveyor, as did Phyllis Seidkin and Georgine Munroe and others on the Eagle staff. Arnold brings Florence back to an aisle seat as he mentions June Rich's important part in the fall term play. By now they are both convinced that the presence of low seniors is advisable when a successful play or publication is desired.

CLASS OF FALL 1943

"Eddie Eagle" looks with dismay at his falling notes, and wonders if he dare retrieve them without causing a commotion. He glances frantically at the other low senior speakers and is amazed at their poise and assurance. Eddie tries to remember his speech about Larry Estavan and the traffic detail and Herb Gaevert and the radio broadcasting system but in vain. Floundering hopelessly for awhile, he wanders off on to the low senior R.O.T.C. officers, naming Dick Schaffer in particular. Eddie desperately stalls for time and suddenly remembers Roberta Hoffman's activities in the Block W. Eddie glances at the clock and yearningly looks at his precious notes on the floor. He remembers to mention Marcia Aboudara and her amazing score at bowling. He also remembers to speak of the well liked Fred Alberts, known as "Tiny." Finally, after what seems hours, the bell rings, and "Eddie Eagle" flies back to his nest.

Best of luck and wishes
Derith Mello "Dee"

CLASS OF FALL 1943

It is not very often that a rugged football player is also an orator, but athlete Pete Desalerno looks quite at ease speaking before his classmates who are listening to him with the same rapt attention they give him when he is in action on the field. Pete's popularity began when he was a sophomore playing guard on the school team and winning glory for Washington and his fellow classmates. He's been active ever since those early days in school affairs. Other low senior athletes are Bill McCargar who has been on the soccer team, Felix Ordoquihandy of baseball fame, popular swimmer Jack Sanford, Bob Rosburg who has won honors with his golf clubs, John Steffen and the track team, and many others. The low senior class has covered itself with glory in the sports world as in all others.

THE HIGH JUNIORS

VICE PRES. BENTLEY
SECRETARY FRASER

The spring term of 1943 saw the high juniors working as a united class with the true Washington spirit. The juniors can look back over the past few months with their heads high, their shoulders thrown back, and walk with a proud stride—for they have a right to be proud of themselves, because of their splendid accomplishments.

The junior class was under the sponsorship of the popular commercial teacher, Mrs. Dorothy Oberlander, and elected as class officers, president, Ed Hancock; vice president, Dave Bentley; secretary, Jean Fraser; and executive council member, Joane Taber.

The outstanding term project, which received the praise of faculty members and students alike, was the Cleanup Campaign under the direction of Mrs. Lillian Clayton. All junior registries took their turn at keeping Washington spic and span. With their "eagle eyes" they patrolled the halls, the cafeteria, and the stadium in search of any old lunch bags or scraps of paper.

A SPIRITED CLASS

This large class of High Juniors has carried on a successful term, which was climaxed by a gala junior day with a rally and a dance. The students of this class, in costumes of big white shirts and gayly colored bow ties, carried suckers and balloons. The boys wore jeans, white shirts and bow ties. The main act of the rally was the U. S. Army Band from San Francisco Fourth Corps at the Presidio. The band had many past members of big name bands performing, and played both semi-classical and "hot jive." The students enjoyed this hour and a half long rally very much.

This class has many prominent members in school affairs. Some of the athletes are as follows: Bob Ingram, of the football team; John Daly, also of the football team; Dick Mallett, a gridder and track man; Wally Swanson and Wally Hillstrom, of aquatic fame; Zane Kaplan, a hurler on the mound of our baseball team, and George Mirande, first place in the All-City meet of the track team. Ann Curtis, the well-known swimmer, is a member of this class also.

Setting something of a precedent in the way of pride over their sponsor, Mrs. Dorothy Oberlander, the juniors introduced her right from the stage on junior day. The Eagle remarked that the "juniors are right proud of their Mrs. Oberlander." Can you blame them?

Ed Hancock, Don Chamberlain, and Dick Foster are members of the Eagle Society. Dorothy Doughty, Freda Byers, and Zoe Apostilites, are members of the Girl's Service Society.

Jean Fitter was secretary of the Girl's Athletic Association. Jack Zuckercorn was a colorful member of the High Junior Class.

THE HIGH SOPHOMORES

PRES. BALDOCCHI
VICE PRES. GABRIEL
SECRETARY JOCZ

THE LOW JUNIORS

The low juniors, in cooperation with the high juniors, made the Clean-up Compaign a great success this term. Papers and all were kept under the "eagle eye" of Walter Link, who, with the help of low junior sponsor, Mr. George Mullany and others, scheduled and had charge of the campaign. Badges were issued and classes were assigned to supervise one eating place for a week during each lunch period.

Others who participated were Prexy Larry Baldocchi, Vice Prexy Joan Gabriel, Secretary Tom Jocz and executive officers Wally Link, Jack Aron and Betty Lou Dye.

Honors were bestowed on Berton Greenburg and George Pallviny through their writing and speaking ability. Speaking of writing—Beverly Gross is secretary of publications.

Jack Anderson is one of our star basketball players and Laurnet Soules is in all-city track. Popular Ellen Heieck is the G.A.A. historian. We are expecting great things of this class.

VICE PRES. LEGEAS SECRETARY STUART

When the class of June, 1945, graduates, they will leave behind them the shining service flag which they dedicated to the school. Twinkling with stars that represent former Washingtonians, the flag will always be a symbol of the lads who went away to serve their country.

Doing their share in helping to prepare for victory, the high sophomores sponsored a Red Cross dance which was very successful. Credit should go to Leon French, popular president of the class, who has also been chosen candidate for Boys' State.

Spotlights are focused on Vice President Margaret Legeas, Secretary Frances Stuart and Mr. Frank Morton, sponsor of the high ten class.

The basketball team has seen such players as Norman Jackson, Frank Farone and Leonard Norack from the high sophomore class.

The school takes its hat off to the high sophs and to their active and vivacious president, Leon French.

THE LOW SOPHOMORES

The little low sophs weren't bashful this term. They entered the school and blithely decided to be different. They elected a girl president, Laura Lee Spiro and a boy vice president, Don Blumenfeld. However, they followed tradition and chose Beulah Spaulding as their girl secretary.

The youngest class in the school seems to have as its members the most prominent of the students who were active in junior high school. There is Mary Jo Miles who was class secretary of the high nines; Dale Callan who was vice president of the student body at Presidio, and Dot Liddle who was the former secretary of Presidio and is now secretary of registry 208.

Collecting dominoes, cards, magazines and ashtrays for the men in the service was the class project. The low sophs had quite a term and they are eager to bring more glory to their new school in future years.

PREPARING YOUTH FOR WAR

On the strength of our American youth depends the future of this country. In educating the boys at Washington, physical education instructors have had to take on the added responsibility of preparing our young boys to take their place in this world at war, physically fit and a credit to their school and country. Therefore, the exercises given the boys this year were far more strenuous than ever before. They were designed to meet the requirements of the War Department in building the muscles and fostering the coordination and endurance that will make the boys into an army that is ready and able to meet and defeat the enemy.

Before the boys entered the gym department they were given a thorough medical examination and a physical fitness test. Four times a year the boys are retested in order to see the improvement shown and whether the exercises they are taking are the proper ones. General class procedure now includes the use of dumbbells, wands and Indian clubs, tumbling, rope climbing, parallel bars, stall bars, and hand to hand drill with wooden sticks to stimulate the actual bayonet practice. The boys march to and from classes in regular military fashion. In accordance with the wishes of the President, the boys have been toughened up with the personal advantage of learning just how to act when they must cope with the enemy. They were taught how to take care of themselves in an emergency and how to lead others. Many of the lads from Washington have passed the Ranger Tests, the rugged routine necessary for American Commandos, and upon graduation when entering the service the boys have almost all been made squad leaders. Their high school training has given them both the mental and physical excellency necessary for a good soldier.

The program for the boys here at George Washington has received such wide approval that it was recently accepted for use throughout the state. The standard routine for a school week includes one day for personal and public hygiene, two days for floor work and two days for outside exercise and competition. Keen competition has inspired the boys to do their best.

Because of such training as this, the youth at Washington is being prepared to fight for the victory that shall be America's.

Much of the success of the new program is due to the gym teachers. They include Mr. Arthur J. Fagin, Mr. Hugh Hunter, Mr. Lloyd Leith and Mr. Saul Madfes, the latter two having left to serve their country during the term. These instructors have worked hard and long to get the boys into condition. They are sending the boys from George Washington High into a war-torn world, prepared to meet the enemy physically fit, and able to cope with any dangers that may confront fighting men in a modern war.

The Eagles are soaring into space, and no man can stop their flight.

FOOTBALL SEASON

In the first game with Commerce, there was only a limited number of Eagles who had had any experience on the gridiron before.

In the next game with Lowell, Washington started clicking but just couldn't get down far enough. The game ended with the same score as the Commerce game, 26 to 0 against the Eagles.

During the St. Ignatius game everything seemed to go wrong. Boys like the Bob Smiths—all of them—Flynn, Durnal and Karp were fighting to the bitter end.

With such players as Cal Latchin and others who were injured, Washington would have won, instead of losing to Lincoln 6-0.

FOOTBALL STARS

This game was the turning point; from then on the Eagles started going ahead. Desalernos proved himself worthy of the all-city rating given him for his performance in the Lincoln game.

In the game with Poly, Washington found out how strong the Parrot's line was, so we made our first touchdown by passing over the line to score. But the Parrots won, twenty to six.

Balboa had the best running game in the city The Eagles made them run for every inch they made. The game ended up, Balboa 20, Washington 0. But the game was closer than the score indicated.

A really good Sacred Heart team had to fight all the way to eke out a one-touchdown victory. The touchdown was made on the longest pass of the season, 56 yards from O'Reagan to Deely.

VARSITY STARS

At the start of the season, Coach Lloyd Leith predicted that the Eagles would finish in the first division. The team made his prediction true.

By meeting St. Ignatius in the first game the Eagles got off to a bad start. We were too inexperienced for the champion Wildcat team. Before we realized what had happened the game was over and we had lost by a score of 34-14.

In the next game the Eagles met a highly favored Galileo team. We were determined not to let pre-game odds effect us. With shots by Myers, Reyff and Desalernos the Eagles piled up a 19-0 half time lead. We coasted the second half to a 24-15 win.

Now being classified as an up and down team the Eagle cagers came back to trounce Balboa by a 40-26 count. In their "big game" of the year the Eagles played one of their best games. With only seconds to go a prayer shot by Lowell's Ken Leslie found its way through the hoop to give Lowell an unearned 22-21 win.

Still in a daze from their Lowell defeat, the Eagles dropped another close game to Mission by a 22-20 score.

The up and down Eagles came back the next week to hand Commerce their sixth straight setback. Leading by two points with one minute to go Dick Franks clinched the game with a one hand push shot. The final score read 31-27.

In their other big game of the year against Poly the Eagles produced a winner.

The last game of the season with Lincoln would decide if the hill-toppers would finish in the first division. We ended our season with a 29-20 win over our rivals from across the park.

Harry Myers, the Eagles' top scoring man and also one of the top scorers of the league, was chosen for the all-city team. Bud DeRecat made honorable mention on the all-city team.

BASKETBALL 130'S

The 130-pound basketball team though not having as successful a season as the unlimited team did very well considering the inexperience of the boys on the team.

After losing our first two games the Eagles came back to beat Sacred Heart, 34 to 25. Some of the reasons for the win were the sharpshooting of Maurice McCarthy and Ken Taussig, who scored 12 and 11 points respectively. The magnificent floor play of Nick Udaloff also helped to bring about the victory.

The Eagles then played Balboa, Lowell, and Mission, respectively. In these games, although all the boys fought to the end, victory was just out of their reach.

The Eagles again broke into the winning column, this time the victim was Commerce. The score was 43 to 25. Ken Taussig and Don Gieson copped high point honors for Washington, scoring 13 and 11 points respectively. Norm Jackson played a very fine floor game. This was another reason for the win.

The Eagles lost their next game, with Poly. Washington went down but we were fighting all the way.

The last game of the season was with Lincoln. The Eagles came through once again to beat the Mustangs. This game was bitterly fought, but the Eagles fought just a little bit harder, so we won. The high point honors for this game were shared by Maurice McCarthy and Ken Taussig. Nick Udaloff, though not scoring as many points as Maurice and Ken, played one of his usual games as one of the best players on the court.

The rest of the team was made up of L. Then, Sherman and W. McDowell. Nick Udaloff and Maurice McCarthy played their last games for Washington, Nick Udaloff graduating and Maurice McCarthy now serving in the Coast Guard. With only these two boys gone from the team Washington should still have enough material left to be up in the first division next year.

Other members of the squad were: Perkins, Zink, Hamilton, Finnis, Davis and Raddue. The only boys left for next year's team will be: Davis, Anderson, DeRecat, Finnis and Raddue.

With true Washington spirit the Eagles are looking forward to an even finer term when the 130's again meet their opponents on the sports field.

VICTORIOUS TEAMS

This year George Washington's 110-pound basketball team had its many miseries. Having but one veteran from last year's championship team, the majority of the boys had little or no experience. Jerome Friedman who was a reserve last year, came through at the center position and did a fine job. At the guard posts were Lenny Norack and Art Regan. At the forward positions were Percy Chu and Frank Farone who did some of the best playing on the team. The boys lost some pretty tough games at the end when the championship was at stake. Being the defending champs, the team lost the cup but won some praise for the school on their fine playing. Boys like Percy Chu and Frank Farone will some day be the boys who will win a championship for another bigger team. All the boys will move up to 120's or 130's next year which should forecast a good basketball season. The boys will make extra-fine material for the heavier teams, and we can look forward to some excellent scores.

Again the 120's had their usual hard season. Losing more than one game by one or two points ruined their chances for the title. Probably the most important reason for this was the fact that most of the boys on the team were inexperienced. Playing from scratch, the team slowly built itself up until it was very potent near the end of the season. The forward positions were held down by Joe Maniscalco and Allen Jones. These two boys both played on the 110 championship team last year and this year were tied together for team point honors. Even before the season both boys were in a heated rivalry for the top honors on the team and it was fitting that they should tie. They are both excellent players. The guard positions were held down by Cliff Martin and Elton Carlomagno. The center position was held by Ken Mayer and John Steel who did extra fine work. All of these boys will be for George Washington again next year. Most of them will move up to the 130's and will be gunning for a championship. We are certain that these Washington boys will be a credit to their school no matter what teams they play on, for we may be confident and proud of their sportsmanship, skill and ability.

BASEBALL PLAYERS

Under the eagle eye of Coach Hugh Hunter, the Washington Eagle baseball team enjoyed their best season since the opening of the school, winning three and losing six. That losing six, although it sounds bad, isn't. Losing by one run or choking in the sixth inning was the only trouble. In the Mission game we lost the game in the sixth by letting three runs come across and losing 4 to 3. In the Balboa game we were ahead 7 to 3 until the sixth. They had a slight rally and the final score was 11 to 7. Another game was Lowell. Score 7 to 6. We bowed to Sacred Heart 10 to 4. Then to Commerce 7 to 1. We also lost to Galileo, the champions. The teams we beat were Saint Ignatius, Poly and Lincoln. The line-up was as follows: pitcher, Zane Kaplan; catcher, Felix Ordiquihandy; first base, Bill McCargar; second base, Allen Jones; third base, James Duffy; short stop, Albert U. Ganem; left field, Jim Zavitka; center field, Fred Oehler; right field, Bob Rosburg. Some of the boys who will be back next year and will be fielding a very good team will be Kaplan, Jones, Ganem, Zavitka and Ray O'Leary.

SWIMMING STARS

Eagles are fine swimmers. This may not be a scientific fact, but as far as Washington High is concerned, the Eagles have proven that they can hold their own in the water. They have spread their water wings and conquered the mighty depths to the satisfaction of even the most critical of sportsmen.

The 120-pound team was comparatively weak because of the limited amount of boys who signed up for the team. However, the boys who were on it did a fine job in winning honors for our school. R. Mellberg entered the 50-yard free style event, D. Bentley the 50-yard breast stroke, the medley relay of 150 yards was entered by R. Gardner, J. Friedman, and D. Bentley, the 100-yard free style was entered by R. Gardner and F. Farone, the 50-yard back stroke starred J. Friedman, and F. Farone. A. Greenbaum, R. Mellberg and L. Rose entered the 200-yard relay. All of these boys were a tribute to Washington.

The 130-pound division had two fine boys who swam under the direction of Charles Sava, director of the Crystal Plunge. These boys, Glen Beri, who endeavored to break the 50-yard free style record, and Al Stoff, who attempted the 50- and 100-yard back stroke, were the fastest in their division. Tom Mayhan who took second place in the lightweight class in diving last year, was one of our best divers. In the 130-pound division, N. Ivanoff and C. Gibbs entered the 50-yard free style; R. Gerstle and S. Mettier the 100-yard breast stroke, the medley relay was entered by A. Stoff, R. Gerstle and G. Berry for the 150 yards, the 100-yard free style was entered by G. Berry and A. Eliopoulas, the 50-yard back stroke by A. Stoff and L. Sangiacoma, and the 200-yard relay by N. Ivanoff, C. Gibbs, L. Weiss and K. Maver.

The boys who swam varsity for us were W. Swanson, W. Renfort, A. Hagstrom, J. Sanford, O. Butler, J. Anderson, and M. Lipman. These boys were a credit to Washington.

SOCCER TEAM

The soccer team this last season was one of Washington's best. It was a high scoring, fast on its feet, outfit. Its only weakness was a strange inability to play well with a wet ball on wet grass.

Both wing men—Mirandi and Steffen—were fast dribblers. Mirandi was the slighter of the two, but was a rough player who could evade tackler after tackler, and always came up with the ball. Steffen was a natural center forward. Our two insides were on the rough and rugged type, good ball rustlers and fine players. Maxie Hirt became the highest scoring center forward in the league. Mike Keropian, our right half, was the fastest man on the team, and a fine dribbler.

The real powerhouses on the team were the Butler brothers. Both were as fast as express trains and almost as heavy.

THE BLOCK W

One of the most popular organizations at Washington is the Girls' Athletic Association, where girls have their fun and frolic. So well known is this society that one needs only to say "G.A.A." to receive the enthusiasm of the feminine Washingtonians.

The G.A.A. has an honor society; its name is the Block "W." Only girls who have joined G.A.A. four terms and have attended their sports meetings faithfully, have been able to receive their Block "W," and in this way become a member of the society.

Miss Shearer, Miss Ramsey, and Mrs. Clayton caught by camera.

The Block has been very active in school affairs this term, and much of the credit goes to the fine officers elected; the officers were Peggy Baumberger, president; Silvia Pommer, vice president, and Constance Trigonis, secretary. They have worked very hard this term in order that the society would function smoothly. This term forty girls are members. They ushered at open house, and at the Girls' Assembly sponsored by the G.A.A.

Silvia Pommer, vice president of the Block "W," had charge of the badminton playday held at Washington with Presidio Junior High School. This playday was sponsored by the Block "W" Society.

The Block held its annual initiation in the girls' gym; the new members were given an informal initiation at which they had to do all types of "crazy" antics.

The sponsor of this society is Miss Dorothea Forcade, who helps the girls very much with their activities. She has been of the greatest assistance in the functions of this society.

As a finishing touch to a wonderful term the entire Block "W" society and the G.A.A. board held a picnic at Golden Gate Park on June 2nd, after school.

The Block "W" is a very popular club at Washington, and many girls work to become members of it. At the end of this term some new members will be admitted to this select group, so work hard, join the G.A.A. and become a member of the Block.

IN THE G. A. A.

The Girls' Athletic Association started the term out with a "bang" by sponsoring a Girls' Assembly Program, at which the new officers elected by Washington's sportswomen were presented, and a skit announcing the sports offered by the association was given.

President Shirlee Stout, Vice President Helene Horwich, Secretary Jean Fitter, Historian Ellen Heieck, Head Yell Leader Helen Taylor and her assistants, June McIntyre and Shirley Gold, added zest and popularity to the assembly by their united efforts. Claire Connor, popular alumnus and past vice president of the G.A.A., returned to George Washington to present a short and very hilarious pantomime about the sports offered by the association this term. The sports presented at the assembly were bowling, swimming, tumbling, beginning riding, advanced riding, badminton and ice skating.

Last term the G.A.A. was hampered greatly by the shortened school day and the staggered hours program which was then in effect. The only students able to be members of the association were those who could walk home after staying for after-school sports. Consequently, when the G.A.A. announced that this term anyone could join the association because the staggered hours schedule was changed, the girls were delighted, and the "sign-up" of members was a great success.

The governing body of the G.A.A. is made up of the officers of the club and the managers of the different sports. This body is called the "Board," and it is advised by Miss Margaret Poole, sponsor of the entire association.

The G.A.A. Board holds a traditional picnic every term for its members and for the fine physical education instructors, Miss Dorothea Forcade, Mrs. Margaret Denny, Miss Margaret Poole, Miss Florence Shearer and Miss Golda Ramsey. This term the picnic was held at Golden Gate Park on June 2.

ANDY ANDERSON

G. A. A. SPORTS

Very few girls who go out for sports realize what their certain manager does. Of course they all know that she takes roll call and attends the board meetings, but do they know all the other things she does? Upon her, falls the duty of checking Student Body cards and report cards; she must be sure that a girl is notified if she is absent too often. She must arrange schedules and play days. She also must see that posters are made and put up to advertise her certain sport, so when you think of your manager, remember her entire job isn't just a "bed of roses."

Bowling met every Tuesday, at the Fillmore Bowling Center. Beverly Gross was the manager and Miss Dorothea Forcade was the faculty member in charge. Here the girls learned how to score, and many are becoming very proficient at the game. This sport had something new this term. At one meeting an exhibition of bowling was given by Miss Rowena Nichols, city champion in the women's division.

Swimmers met every Wednesday at the main Y.W.C.A. The manager was June Antipa, and Miss Golda Ramsey also met and assisted the girls. Many girls become expert at swimming and diving. Ann Curtis, a girl who took this sport, is now the Junior Women's National Swimming Champion.

Badminton was sponsored by Miss Florence Shearer, and the teams met on Monday and Tuesday. Roberta Hoffman was a manager for this sport. A badminton playday was held in the early part of May, when students from Presidio Junior High School competed against Washington girls. The girls had a very enjoyable time and decided to hold another playday very soon.

Beginners and Advanced Riding met on Mondays and Tuesdays respectively, and Miss Margaret Poole was the sponsor. The girls went on a two-hour ride to Lake Merced and roasted hot dogs (even with meat rationing) for dinner. Managers were Bobbie Hyams and Barbara Chambers.

The newest sport added to the list offered this term was tumbling; this sport met on Thursdays, with Miss Margaret Poole. Sue Lang was manager. The girls worked out a program which they presented to the entire club at a sports rally. Everyone agrees that the tumblers are getting very proficient and this sport is becoming very popular.

Last, but not least, there is Ice Skating, the most graceful of sports, which met on Mondays at Winterland. The sports teacher was Miss Golda Ramsey. Marian Green was manager.

Remember, for your enjoyment, for your health and for your relaxation, join the G.A.A.

SERGEANT JACK RYAN
Director of R.O.T.C. Activities

On March 5, the Ninth Service Command Intercollegiate Gallery Rifle Matches came to a close, with our boys coming out on top by a small but assuring margin.

With increasing enrollment each term, George Washington's R.O.T.C. unit under the able direction of Sergeant J. Ryan, has developed into one of the better military units of the city.

In the spring of every year an inspection, termed the Federal Inspection, is held in each unit. This competition is the most important R.O.T.C. affair of the year. Its results are as yet unknown.

OFFICERS

The R.O.T.C.'s officers are the main stem of its success. This has been proven by the repeated number of times they have brought two units through to victory.

Because of the work of an officer, Gerard Rhine, and his Company D, the R.O.T.C. succeeded in beating Lowell on April 16 in city-wide competition at Kezar stadium. Previously they had won company competition of the school.

Colonel Smith and Lieutenant Colonel Walsh are our highest ranking cadets. They are at every parade to inspect the companies.

The Saber Club is strictly an officers' outfit, as officers are the only ones allowed to join. This club was started back in the June term of 1938 and has been operating since.

These future leaders of our army have proven themselves beyond a question of a doubt. Some cadets who have graduated are in the army in Tunisia, others are fighting the already won battle of the Solomon Islands.

On every part of the globe, past R.O.T.C. officers and men are fighting to protect our heritage.

Knowing a little extra, a little beforehand, has offered to some a swift climb to a non-commissioned officer rating or officers candidate school in the army.

Every captain trains his men for the federal inspection which comes during the spring of each term. This is the officers' and companies' greatest opportunity to work together and to prove their worth.

When the federal inspector left the school, a smile was across his face, assuring us he was pleased.

Under the leadership of captains and lieutenants, the various companies go through court drill with the ease of a walking passerby.

Best of wishes to Colonel Coena.

Best of luck from Howard Brewster

OUR COMPANIES

All Washingtonians are proud of the accomplishments of their uniformed classmates.

Company A under the leadership of Captain Schaffer, and Lieutenants Cailleaud, Rogers, Semenko and Simmons was the company that did the close order drill during the federal inspection on May 10. Captain Schaffer was considered the top man of the battalion and received a medal for his work.

Company B and its Captain Leavitt and Lieutenants Dimm, Lamorey, Bentley and Ostroff have continually proven to be excellent cadets. Particularly during parades have they shown themselves to be an alert and intelligent group.

Captain Beachler of Company C, along with his Lieutenants Church and Devlin, are proud of the fact that they were leaders of the company that did such an excellent job on physical drill during federal inspection.

The city-wide company winner was Company D. Without the able direction of Captain Rhine and Lieutenants Gregoriev, Hall, Moore and Suslow the company would not have been able to achieve its high standards. Each cadet received a medal for his efforts and now proudly displays it.

Though each company is a crack outfit, it must prove itself when marching in the battalion. All must be in perfect step and each cadet must see to it that he is spick and span.

The rifle team was victorious in its attempt to receive top honors in the Ninth Service Command Inter-Collegiate Gallery Rifle Matches. The final match was on March 5, in the Armory and C. K. McClatchy High School of Sacramento came second. Washington won the matches.

Our highest sharpshooters were Van Steenburgh, Monroe, Moore, Thoshinsky, Tuckey, Murphy, Sperou, Steffen and Cheney. They have received medals for their splendid work.

During every battalion parade, the R.O.T.C. band is out, adding color and dignity to the unit. It is an important factor in the success that has been made by our unit, and deserves to be congratulated.

Faculty Instructor Mr. Marion Knott deserves much credit and thanks for his splendid work, as does Captain Allmond, the band leader.

Lots of luck and happiness to

EAGLES

This year the Eagle Society carried on in the tradition that has been the antithesis of the society since its organization when the school began. The duties of the members are to maintain order at all school functions and guard the colors and banner of the school. The boys are always at the service of the faculty and are ready to serve their school at a moment's notice. This past term the members of the society have been extremely successful in carrying out their duties.

The Eagle cap, of alternate scarlet and gray sections serves to identify the members of the organization, while those who wish, can also wear the Eagle Society pin.

The society held a dance on June 4th which is beginning to be an annual function since it was started in the fall term. Under the fall president, Bill Rose, the Eagles initiated this event and it is fast assuming a social position equalled only by the senior prom.

The spirited leaders of this society were responsible for its tremendous success. The popular and ambitious president of one of the most important and influential of all Washington societies was Bob Sutherland. Assisting Bob in his many tasks were well liked Stan Perkins as vice president and conscientious Norman Brown as secretary-treasurer.

The excellent sponsor of the Eagle Society is Mr. George Klingner, dean of boys, who does a fine job in helping the boys in their many activities.

GIRLS' SERVICE SOCIETY

Under the able leadership of Jayne Griegorieff the Girls' Service Society completed a term filled with activities and service. Assisting Jayne with her duties were Amanda George as the vivacious vice president and Helene Horwich as the popular and responsible secretary. During the term the girls in the society ushered at rallies, helped the cleanup campaign by keeping the lunch room spic and span, collected tin foil from the registries and performed many services for their school. The Girls' Service Society also sponsored an assembly for the feminine members of the student body. The speaker was Mrs. Katherine Sullivan, founder of the Big Sister Movement in San Francisco.

At the beginning of the term the society held its annual initiation and dinner at Sigmund Stern Grove. The informal initiation was held in the late afternoon. The girls played their hilarious pranks in their own inimitable style and all had a good time. Later in the early evening, the entire group sat on the floor by the fireplace and ate a spaghetti dinner. After dinner the girls were formally initiated at a beautiful service. Many alumni were present at the gathering. The girls initiated were Doris Norman, Faye Pasch, Dorothy Doughty, Barbara Hyams, Zoe Apostolides, Christine LaMont, Joanne Mitchell, Sylvia Zeidler, Freda Byers, Joanne Bosch, Shirlee Stout, Peggy Baumberger, Patricia Hindley and Janice Hindley.

On May 23 the Girls' Service Society held its annual alumni tea at the home of Amanda George. The girls had the pleasure of meeting many Washingtonians who claimed membership in the celebrated society. The alumni were entertained with a number of interesting speeches by the present members who talked of George Washington High in the year 1943.

The graduating members of the society are Jayne Griegorieff, Amanda George, Doris Norman, Helene Horwich, Barbara Hyams, Janice Hindley, Patricia Hindley, Joanne Mitchell, Pat Bradley, Sylvia Zeidler, Joanne Bosch, Shirlee Stout and Peggy Baumberger.

The sponsor of the Girls' Service Society is Miss Eleanor Jackson, dean of girls. Miss Jackson has greatly assisted the girls with their activities and advised them at all times.

The members wear, as their official cap, a red and scarlet cap which resembles that of the boys in the Eagle Society. The girls wear their hats at all occasions which they participate in and on every Friday.

C. S. F.

With the flaming torch as their guide, the Washington members of the California Scholarship Federation successfully completed another term of hard work. The flaming torch symbolizes the everburning light of learning which shall never lose its brilliance.

Under the sponsorship of Miss Bernice Bilafer and Miss Eleanor Parsons the C.S.F. performed its duties with the usual efficiency for which its members are known. One of the most important duties of the Federation is to supply coaches to assist other students in subjects they find too hard to be easily mastered. It has been due to the helping hands of the C.S.F. coaching committee that many Washingtonians have passed difficult subjects with comparative ease.

Another important duty of the C.S.F. is to assist Mr. Bruce Bartholomew, chairman of the program committee, in seeing that Washington students find themselves in their proper classes.

These are but two illustrations of the work of the C.S.F. They are things which may not seem important, yet without them school would not be quite so cheerful or quite so pleasant.

Membership in the C.S.F. is reserved for those students who have ten points on their report cards and no mark lower than a B. Three points are given for an A and one for a B.

Elected by their fellow members in the C.S.F., the officers performed their duties with the same spirit that C.S.F. officers always possess. Last term's officers were: Art Johnson, president; Beverly Simpson, vice president, and Constance Trigonis, secretary.

SCHOLARSHIP

The officers this term were Alan Buckley, president; Joanne Mitchell, vice president, and Ruth Heppner, secretary.

The ambition of all C.S.F. members is to obtain a life membership in the Federation. This is easier said than done. Those who maintain the high standards required for regular membership for four terms, one term in the senior year, become life members. On their diploma is placed the coveted gold seal signifying life membership. Those who attained this high honor last term were Rosalie Spendel, Marjorie Lynch, Janice De Moor, Lucille De Lu, John Almerico, Peter Malone, Marilyn Blake, Dorothy Zimet, Lorna Legeas, Beatrice Baer and Mary Paterson. This term's life members were: Franklin Brann, Alan Buckley, Florence Malmquist, Henry Berlin, Sylvia Zeidler, Maryanna Nugent, Joanne Bosch and Helen Wheeler.

THE PAPER

"A school is what its students make it"—and that goes for the school newspaper as well.

"The Eagle" is the mirror for life at Washington High; in its pages are reflected the laughter and the seriousness, the dreams and the hopes, and the ambition, success and failure of high school years, precious years—unforgettable years.

The main job of the Washington newspaper is to cover the activities of the students and the clubs of the school.

This term, with Stan Sadler as news editor, five issues were published for the enjoyment of the many Washingtonians who paid their five cent cost.

The very popular "Susie High School" was cleverly written by Pat Bradley. This column described what the well dressed Washington girl was wearing and nominated a girl of the month. Written especially for laughs, the humor page proved especially good. It was edited by Roselle Mayerhofer and Beverly Gross, with cartoons by Bob Weber and Editor Stan Sadler.

G.A.A. news, looked forward to with eager anticipation by the girls at Washington, was written by Dorothy Doughty, girls' sports editor, while boys' sports were faithfully covered by Dick Briggs as boys' sports editor.

Heading the business end of the Eagle staff was Ernest Barker, who proved to be a very fine business manager. Gerry Small handled all advertising for the paper, while John Meyer supervised the circulation department.

There were twenty-two members of the Eagle reporting staff who kept eager eyes out for any new event about school. This naturally brought very favorable results and no news, gossip or unusual events passed unnoticed. The guiding light for the entire staff was Don Siegel, director of publications. Editor of last term's Eagle, all of Don's experience and ability along with that of the other members of the staff, worked to bring—and succeeded in bringing—this term's Eagle up to and surpassing the high standards set by George Washington Eagles in the past.

YOUR JOURNAL

FAYE PASCH
Editor of the Surveyor

This is it. No more pictures to paste, no more worries, no more ideas, no more copy to write—for this is it. From the hundreds of photos of Washingtonians at work and play, numerous artistic endeavors, and feverish plans, the June, 1943, George Washington Surveyor is finished.

The Surveyor Staff wishes to thank the various members of the faculty, including the journalism advisor, Mr. George Mullany, whose advice and help proved invaluable; Miss Eleanor Parsons who had charge of the circulation; Miss Marie Kirwin, graduate registrar; Mr. Rufus Balaam and his sales classes who assisted with the advertising; Miss Bernice Bilafer who was of great help, and Miss Haidee Tobriner for the art work. Without the assistance of these teachers, the success of your journal would not have been assured.

Editor of your Surveyor was Faye Pasch, and assisting her as associate editor was Borden Rosenbaum, artist and photographer, who proved indispensable to the book. Ronald DuBois was the art editor, and Dorothy Doughty handled the difficult job of graduate editor. Advertising for the Surveyor was supervised by Florence Ulfelder, while Barbara Weikel acted as business manager and Reva Baker as circulation manager.

Pete Constantine and Pat Bradley held the positions of boy and girl sports editors respectively, while Stan Sadler edited the R.O.T.C. section. Don Siegel was responsible for the club section as editor of these activities.

Other members of the staff were Joanne Mitchell, Gerry Small, Phyllis Seidkin, Beverly Gross, and all students of journalism.

The work that these students put into this Surveyor is worth it, if you, the students, like the journal.

DRAMA AT WASHINGTON

Washington High seems to have an "X" card in winners. Through drama, oratory and debating our school has been placed at the head of the list in ability, talent and first place honors. Proof of these facts lies in the events of the past year.

They mildly applauded as the curtain went up, but they wildly cheered as the final curtain came down. The members of the "Green Room" had rung the bell! Those "oh, but-hard-to-please" George Washington first nighters, who had gathered in our auditorium on January 14 to witness the performance of "The Late Christopher Bean" were both awed and thrilled by the amazing dramatic talent displayed on the stage that evening.

Blossom Bien, the girl who, on April 29, brought honors to herself and George Washington High by winning first place in the city-wide annual Shakesperean contest, played the leading role, that of Abby, to perfection. Other parts were portrayed by Arnold Kohn as Warren; Dick Foster as Mr. Hagges; Tim Courtney as Mrs. Hagges; Alec Ross as Tallent; Warren Weinstock as Rosen; Merton Berkovitch as Davenport; Peggy Baumberger as Susan, and June Rich as Ada. The unconscious ease and lack of stage freight on the part of the actors, manifested itself the night of the performance and gave the play that sought-after professional air rarely found in high school productions. Charming Miss Helen Archer, dramatic coach, and director of the "Late Christopher Bean," left her many friends and devoted pupils the day following the play to work for the army in Alaska.

The reins of Miss Archer's classes and clubs were picked up, upon her departure, by able Miss Natalie Zisser, popular Washington music teacher. Miss Zisser at once began planning for the next term play, and finally chose the three-act comedy, "Ever Since Eve." Needless to say her efforts were well rewarded, because the play turned out to be the biggest hit of this or any other dramatic season at Washington. Again those "oh, but-hard-to-please" Washington first nighters were, upon the final curtain, madly applauding, loudly cheering and hysterically laughing at, what everyone who attended "Ever Since Eve" will agree, was a masterpiece of fun

Washington's name was brought into prominence by George Pallviny, who won first place in an American Legion Essay Contest on the subject, "Why I Want To Be a Congressman."

PRIZE ORATORS

and hilarious merriment. Arnold Kohn and Nancy Payne played the leading roles, that of Johnny Clover and Susan Blake. Other parts were as follows: Bob Smith, Spud Erwin; Gerry Small, Betsy Erwin, Alec Ross, Mr. Clover; Tim Courtney, Mrs. Clover; Ron DuBois, Henry Quinn; Norma Toff, Martha Willard; Melva Niles, Lucybelle Lee; Dick Foster, Preston Hughes; Leonard Schlussel, Officer "Cappy Simmons"; Dave Yorton, Stan Perkins; Chuck Single, Charles Karp, Richard Grenfell and Fred Alberts, football players. The play sparkled with gay, witty dialogue, and all performances turned in seemed truly bright and spontaneous.

In the field of debating, as in drama, George Washington High School came out on top. Blossom Bien and Dick Foster won their debate against Polytechnic High. Lowell High was also defeated on this same day by Alec Ross and Gerry Small. Many debating and oratory tournaments were entered throughout the year by various members of the debating club and public speaking classes, with Washington always placing high in honors.

Truly this was a winning year, and one of which to be proud. But this is by no means the stopping point in either thespian or oratorical activities, for the drama of life continues, and as it does, so will the talents of our Washingtonians soar to even greater heights.

Alec Ross is not only to be congratulated on his outstanding acting in both dramatic productions given this year, but also on the record he has made for himself as an orator. Alec, through his oratorical talents, won an expense-paid trip to New York City and the coveted honor of being the second best high school public speaker in the United States. Washington can be proud of Alec Ross, orator extraordinary.

MUSIC MAKERS

In keeping with the martial tempo of the times and the marching feet of Washington students, patriotic tunes to make the past year memorable have been sung and played by Washington's musicians.

The mixed chorus and girls' choral groups under the direction of Miss Natalie Zisser received a rousing salute from the armed forces when, on several occasions, they entertained at the Army-Navy Y.M.C.A.

In the true Washington spirit of service, they gave their time to sing for the wounded veterans at Letterman Hospital.

Students, parents, and the faculty had a chance to hear these groups in addition to the advanced orchestra under the direction of Mr. Marion Knott at the open house program.

Mr. Knott's dance band has not been silent either; they have delighted the students at rallies, student body dances, and the term play.

Mrs. Logan and Pres. Smith

THE BEST PREPARATION

"Any Bonds Today?" was quick to become hit tune number one on Washington's patriotic song parade and with bond sales mounting higher and higher, it looks as though it's there to stay. Each student has done his job well, for our total is admirable and one of the highest in the city.

With the thought that each dime, or quarter, or dollar, goes to build a gun, a plane, or a ship, it's not hard to add one's own small contribution to the ever-growing war fund. The enlistment of so many Washingtonians in various branches of the armed forces has brought much closer to everyone the real need for this money.

Junior Day marked the beginning of a super sales campaign and since then, the bond booth has been occupied each lunch period by a stamp salesman. Various students have taken their turn there, and all announce that business is booming. The booth is rigged up with a portable phonograph and records, and has made the main hall a favorite spot of students who spend many minutes of their lunch period dancing to popular dance recordings.

Student investment in bonds would certainly not be possible without the enthusiastic aid and support of Mrs. Edna Logan, banking director, whose job it is to supervise these bond sales, and Mr. Rufus Balaam, head of the sales classes. To these teachers go much of the credit, for without their fine work it is very likely that our total would be many dollars less.

And to each and every student who has bought a war bond or stamp, our thanks, for this is one loan whose dividends will not be paid alone in cash, but in a lasting peace. Washingtonians have learned to "dig down deep" to invest in America, whose reward to them will be a quicker, surer victory.

The camera catches some Hilltoppers dancing in the library during one of the sessions which were so popular this last year. This term more students than ever before attended the dances—not to watch, not to talk, but of all things, to dance! Perhaps their success was due to the dance committees and the energy and ability of Pat Bradley, vice-president of the student body.

It seems that even the faculty at Washington enjoy their food at the cafeteria. The teachers' lunchroom is popular during the noon hour, when the weary instructors get a brief respite from the worries of the classroom. We students secretly believe that the faculty gets as much enjoyment when the clock strikes twelve as do the students. What is that poem that goes, "For only one short hour. . ."?

Members of the illustrious organization famed far and wide as the "Tri-Y" gather before the house of one of the members before a meeting begins. Phyllis Frates seems anxious for the appearance of a "Tri-Y"er and looks down the street for the missing girl, while Martha Heide, Lorraine Roberts and the others wait patiently for the late comer.
